“ The best memory I have is when Butch had a birthday coming up. I hadn't been married long and I had a job. I bought him a ticket to an upcoming AC/DC concert. He squealed so loud , picked me up and gave me a great big hug. I was 9 years old when his oldest son was born. I never will forget it. My daddy met me at the end of the driveway when I got off the school bus and said "hello aunt Debbie." I was so excited. When I had my first baby he and his pregnant wife were right there with me all night long. Six weeks later his daughter was born. We spent a lot of time together especially in our younger years and he would always introduce me as his baby sister. I will cherish these memories forever. I love you big brother.

My husband was working on the hot water heater and Butch offered him a beer about the same time my husband got shocked by the water heater. I couldnt even get sick n get admitted to the hospital that ole butch was on the next floor below me... Lol...
